

My name is Sarah Davis, EdD. I earned my Doctorate of Education in Curriculum and Instruction at Texas A&M University, my Masters in Education with a focus on Language, Literacy and Culture at University of San Diego, and my Bachelors Degree in Political Science and English from Skidmore College. I've taught children from ages 3-15. I've also had the opportunity to be intensively trained in the Lindamood-Bell LiPS Program, and I was trained in the Orton-Gillingham reading program through the Dyslexia Institute of Indiana. I served as a Literacy Coach for elementary age students, and worked 1-1 with them in a daily tutoring environment. I believe in a multi-sensory approach to learning, having fun, creating strong relationships, and meeting kids where they are to give them confidence to move forward. In my free time, I enjoy exercising, being with my children, and working on my writing projects.
